This weekend Tyrant Wrestling rolls out another new tournament. Teams from PA, NJ, NY, CT, MD, NC, MI, and VA will clash in eastern Pennsylvania. All competing teams have Tyrant Tournament experience, which means they know how hard they'll have to fight if they want to be crowned as the first ever East Penn Duals Champions! 29 total teams and nearly 500 wrestlers will be stepping on the mats in the York Expo Center, a place where Tyrant has hosted events since the start. 14 mats of action this weekend. Overall, at least 13 states are represented by the wrestlers set to compete. In addition to those states mentioned above, there will also be athletes from OH, RI, TN, ME, DE in the building. Familiar teams will clash. Wrestlers are ramping up for the season. We can't wait to see how the first ever East Penn Duals plays out!

All teams will compete in round robin format and wrestle each other with one team in each division emerging victorious.

Mat Assassins are the favorite this weekend in the HS division. As stated before this club is absolutely tyrant tournament battle tested as they compete in numerous events throughout the year, always finding themselves in title matches or near the top of the leaderboard. Several Mat Assassins wrestlers competed at Tyrant Nationals this year where 3 of their wrestlers were crowned HS Champions! Gabe Benyo, Mason Whitney, and Tommy Schechterly are all competing this weekend. Cj Caines, a Tyrant Nationals finalist, will also be wrestling for the Assassins. Benyo and his brother Jake are on the Mat Assassins Red team.

Mat Assassins has 7 teams overall competing this weekend! 2 squads in each division minus ES4 where they have 1 team. How much hardware will the Assassins rack up this weekend?

Rebellion is another strong HS team with much Tyrant experience and success. Nearly always found competing for a title. Ethan Valdisera is a Tyrant Nationals finalist and 2024 Maryland MIS State Champion. He's wrestling at 113 this weekend. Several of the Rebellion wrestlers including but not limited to: Wes Baumgartner, Mason Comegys, and Dominic Manna are capable of scoring bonus points when the team needs them.

Team GT is always strong no matter what roster they present. Expect them to be scoring big and making a strong run at the HS duals title. Joseph Sanderfer (144) is an OH State Placer who's nationally ranked #19 by FloWrestling. Sanderfer went undefeated for team Ohio Storm at last weekend's Tyrant Gridiron Duals. Tyler Roark is a 2X WV State Champ. The whole lineup is tough. Keep an eye on Team GT in both the HS and MS divisions.

Scanlan WA is also another HS team to watch out for. They always wrestle tough to the final whistle. They are the lone team representing VA this weekend. Central York has some up-and-coming talent to watch out for as well in the HS division.

CTWHALE will have 3 teams competing this weekend, 1 in each of the ES4, ES6, and MS divisions. Their rosters are full of talent and youth state champs/ placers from throughout the New England region.

Warhawks are another club that has been coming to Tyrant events for years. Expect them to be right in the mix of the top teams of the ES6 and MS divisions.

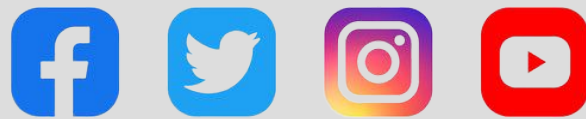

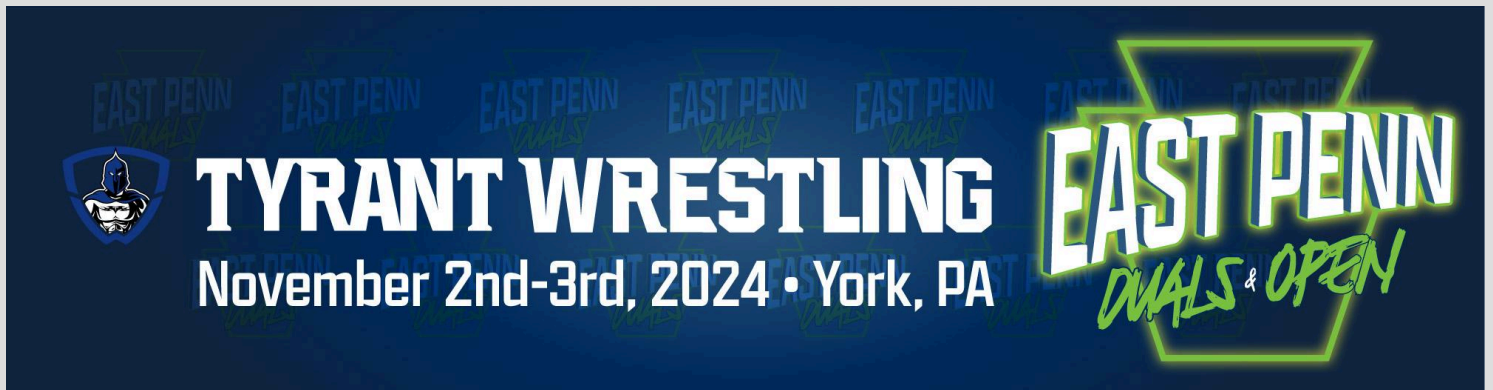

Killer Elite out of Michigan competed at Tyrant Gridiron last weekend in OH and they're back for more, which shows their commitment and determination to keep improving and jumping levels.

Full Circle out of NC is in the same boat as they have been steadily coming to Tyrant tournaments over the last year or so. Let's see if they can take some hardware back south.

Buxton is coming off a Gridiron Duals title last weekend. Always a strong roster with a cohesive team that steps up for each other. Can they win 2 Tyrant titles in back to back weeks??

Keep an eye on Kraken in the MS division. Their roster is littered with PA, NJ, and DE State placers/ champions. They for sure have the firepower to win it all.

And finally... Rampage and Journeymen in the ES4 division. Both familiar names that bring scrappy, skilled wrestlers for their age level. Let's see what they got for us this weekend!
